A Rebuke to Governor Long.

By unanimous vote, the ways and means committee of the Louisiana house of representatives has unfavorably reported the bill inspired and supported by Governor Huey P. Long to tax the newspapers of that state fifteen per cent. of their gross advertising incomes. It may be said that the papers of the state paid tribute to the mentalities of the members of the committee by anticipating they would take the action they did. They pay tribute to the entire legislative membership by anticipating that the bill will now be withdrawn.

The bill, directed as it was at but one line of business, was a vicious attempt at spite legislation in retaliation for the light thrown upon the governor's somewhat fantastic conception of his powers, privileges and duties as the state's chief executive. The governor's feeling against the press no doubt has been greatly augmented by its opposition to his movement for a constitutional convention to open the way for the passage of his proposed $60,000,000 highway bond issue, a proposal which has created a wave of resentment throughout Louisiana.

The governor is said to control a majority of the members of the legislature, but is unable to secure, or has been thus far, the necessary two-thirds majority to amend the constitution so as to make the issue possible. The opponents of the governor's plan have organized under what is virtually the leadership of the entire daily press of the state to block the calling of the convention, and admission has been made that, if all other means fail, a filibuster will be adopted to prevent legislative action. In the light of the action of the committee on the newspaper tax bill, however, there may not be any occasion for filibuster for, although the constitutional amendment proposal lacks the viciousness of the newspaper tax bill, the action taken on the latter rather indicates that the governor's control over the legislature is far from so strong as it has been held.

The Country Is the Sufferer.

The most pronounced opposition President Hoover has thus far encountered in the senate was that which was manifested when the upper house of congress, ignoring his denunciation of the World War veterans' pension bill, voted sixty-six to six in support of the proposed measure.

That the President's estimate of the measure has not been influenced by the almost solid senatorial support it secured, is manifested by his statement of Tuesday in which he said it "is bad legislation, and is no more in the interest of the veteran than it is in the interest of the taxpayer." He further referred to it as "wasteful" and "discriminatory," and held that "it violates not only the fact but the very integrity of government action."

Despite the presidential lack of esteem for the proposed measure, there is little question but what the house will accept the senate amendments, and there is every indication that, vetoed, the bill will be passed over the veto.

It is just possible that the support of the bill would not have attained the proportions it has had the President seen fit to remain silent until after both legislative bodies had taken action on it. The threat of a veto was hardly politic. Any human being will resent a threat, and the odd mixture of beings making up the senate have demonstrated that they are in this respect no exception to the rule. That the veto threat will have a similar effect on the house membership may be taken for granted, but it can hardly be anticipated that the vote in the lower house will be so pronounced as it was in the upper.

It is a matter for regret that the capitol and the White House could not have gotten together on the bill, which is at best, as we understand it, but temporary in its effect. The country has already suffered far too greatly from the results of the divergent views of the legislative and executive branches of the government.

The Pennsylvania athletic commission has permanently revoked the license of George Godfrey as a boxer, which is a double blow, as the commission had previously ruled that it would not recognize any heavyweight champion until Godfrey was eliminated as an aspirant. A few actions such as this and fouling will cease to be the rule, as it has been in recent heavyweight fights.

Bishop Cannon says Congressman Tinkham has not repeated all the charges made by the congressman on the floor of the house and Tinkham comes back with new charges. The exhibition being staged by the two is very much like that of two small boys making faces at each other.

Fine Flight of Southern Cross.

The first flight across the North Atlantic in a heavier-than-air machine from a runway in the Old world to an airport in the New. Thus the air voyage of Major Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions—J. W. Stannage, M. E. Van Dyk and J. T. Saul—over the most hazardous of all air courses must be acclaimed. That the quartet of adventurous spirits did not reach their New York goal was due to the going wrong of their compass, which caused them to wander about in the fog for four or five hours. When their bearings were secured, they had consumed so much gasoline that they deemed it wise to seek a nearer airport, and flew northeastward to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, where they landed shortly before 6 o'clock this morning.

Many have attempted plane flights from Europe to the United States. Of all of them, the crew of the Southern Cross and the three dauntless adventurers who made up the crew of the Bremen succeeded in reaching this side of the Atlantic, the Bremen having smashed upon an islet off Labrador. Save for these seven, all who have made the attempt have found watery graves.

That Major Kingsford-Smith and his companions merit praise goes without the saying. Theirs was a feat alike of skill, of daring and of courage. But acclaiming them, something may be said for the Southern Cross. There must be more than average merit in a plane which has accomplished so splendidly the work mapped out for it. If the flight this morning was its only one of merit, the proposition would be different, but the remarkable flight from California to Australia is recalled, and the two, to say nothing of many other lesser flights, combine to show the Southern Cross to be a superb machine.

The Himalaya mountain-climbing party finally reached the 21,300-foot summit of Jonsong peak, the highest ever climbed, and beheld a scene, its members claim, of such grandeur as human eyes never before looked upon. The most of us will be glad to take their word for it, climbing ice and snowclad peaks reaching 24,000 feet heavenward not being within the scope of what we consider worthwhile.

"Miss Texas" and "Miss California," winners of the first and second honors respectively at the Miami beauty show, have been disqualified and "Miss Tampa" named "Miss America." This vital matter having been disposed of, the world may once more resume the trivialities of life.

The cables say that King Alfonso met Santiago Alba, former Liberal minister exiled under the dictatorship, in Paris and won him over to his regime. There must be a lot more to the Spanish king than generally estimated. Either that, or he has a marked facility for winning former enemies to his cause.

Through the generosity of an American who wishes to preserve his anonymity, the home of the late Georges Clemenceau is to be preserved and maintained as a museum. STATES OF MIND.

In its most recent issue, the Review of Reviews prints translations of two articles which discuss the walks and ways, and ideals and objectives of Americans, and are curiously illuminating when placed side by side. The first is by Andre Siegfried and appeared in the Revue des Deux Mondes in its original form. The second is by Theodor Lauddecke and was printed first in Die Deutsche Rundschau of Berlin.

Both writers deal faithfully with American limitations and faults, but their conclusions and the tones of their writings are entirely distinct. The Frenchman betrays an almost naive envy and resentment of our prosperity and progress, and finds our imperfections overclouding everything else. We are a horrible example and menace. The burden of his plea is, "Don't be American."

The German, without becoming in the least maudlin or idly complimentary, acknowledges that we have our good points, even admirable ones, and is frankly appreciative of them. He suggests that Germans study, emulate and profit. "The spirit of the 'pioneer still lives in America," says Herr Lauddecke. 'Determination, large vision, love of action as well as cold calculation in economic matters which of necessity must exclude indulgence in sentiment—that is what America can teach us. And Germany bitterly needs the lesson if she is to compete in the economic race."

To our mind, the significance of the two articles cited does not reside in the fact that they reveal certain Old world feelings about America, but rather in the circumstance that they expose mental attitudes in the two countries of which the writers are more or less representative.

The counsel of the Frenchman is a counsel of bitterness, criticism and balky rejection born apparently of envy. The counsel of the German is a practical, constructive counsel. He wants his countrymen to study and emulate, even though they may not altogether love, because he sees that it is to their own present and future advantage to do this. His idea is that any knowledge of methods which will be good for the German people and help them get back their stride and prosperity ought to be utilized regardless of source.

In these two opposing states of mind, it seems to us, is to be found the reason why France is nervous, discontented and stationary and why Germany is calm, optimistic and on the road of advancement.—Detroit Free Press.

BILLBOARDS GOING BY THE BOARDS.

Ever since the coming of the automobile the United States has been improving roadbeds. Now, under the leadership of the National Committee for Restriction of Outdoor Advertising, more than 100 organizations are cooperating to preserve and restore the scenic beauty of the nation's roadsides by insisting that billboard advertising be confined to commercial districts. Already 141 national advertisers and agencies have agreed to add impetus to this movement by removing offending signs or refusing to use the rural landscape as their advertising background.

Besides this, more than a dozen states have either taken, or are planning to take, legislative measures for the control of the billboard nuisance; and many unaffiliated organizations, such as the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Garden Club of America, the National Automobile chamber of commerce, to name a few, have gone on record as opposed to the spoiling of roadside vistas by the ubiquitous billboard.

The United States spends $1,000,000,000 annually on its highways. The people pay the taxes which furnish this sum. In justice, they are entitled to the enjoyment of the recreational features of the roads they build.

Moreover, the move to restrict this sort of advertising is not likely to work any hardship on the advertiser. The billboards upon the American landscape today constitute only one per cent. of all national advertising. Clear away these rural offenders, and business is still entitled to the ninety-nine per cent. of advertising left. And, since there is a well-organized tendency afoot to "favor the firms which favor the scenery," prudence would seem to caution any rebellious rural wayside sign users that their hour has struck.—Christian Science Monitor.

High Pressure Living.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Why is it that so many persons, especially women, are looking so careworn and fatigued in this modern age? What makes this "so tired" feeling, and what is the remedy for it?

There seems to be a different quality to the fatigue we meet today. It does not come from too hard work. There is in it the accumulated effects of the strain and stress of the world about us.

It certainly is not natural for a normal person to be always tired. Yet there are many families where the mother, or a daughter, is burdened with tiredness. She feels it from the time she gets up in the morning until she goes to bed at night.

It isn't because the modern housewife has the physical burdens her grandmother had, that she is so fatigued. She has many convenient aids in her housework. Usually she has a smaller family than in former times. She has more time to herself and yet she is tired. There is something wrong somewhere.

Fatigue which comes from good, hard work is healthful rather than otherwise. It is the fatigue which the usual night's sleep cannot cure that is serious. This is a more persistent kind of fatigue.

It is felt on waking up in the morning. It weighs the victim down. It is like a low-lying fatal, all day interfering with pleasure and the capacity for work.

You have to struggle against it. There is no enthusiasm for anything. You feel as old as Methuselah.

The probability is the trouble lies in the high pressure of living today. There are too many activities going on about us. So much is crowded into a woman's day that she becomes a victim of nerve strain that is hard to overcome. She goes on incessantly with activities of all sorts, hurrying through her meals, always on the rush to go somewhere, and up at all times of the night.

Unless she stops for a complete rest, and unless the right habits of living are substituted for the wrong ones, it is going to become a serious matter. You can't break all the laws of health and right living and not have serious consequences. "Breakdowns" in health are all too common. Do not be one of this company of overtaxed, nervous incapacitated persons.

There are some persons who never learn how to play or relax. Everyone should have some hobby, or some form of relaxation that changes the mental outlook. It may be golf, or a good time at a dance, if you make up your sleep and rest after it. But whatever you do, make it your time of fun and play and relaxation. Get plenty of sleep and moderate exercise. Build up your health. You will find yourself refreshed and ready for the routine of daily life.

Bringing up a family is made a much more complicated affair than it used to be. The young mother must understand infant psychology. She must know something about nutritional value. She must cope with the new ideas in education. Perhaps she has troubles of her own with the domestic routine, poor help, or none, and a thousand worries to boot.

Every woman should have some time in the day when she can be alone and rest, and "catch up with herself." It might add ten years to her life if she would do this and keep to good habits of living.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

W. M. Q—When flowers are left in the house do they take in all the good fresh air for themselves? Should flowers be kept in the house?

A—No; they thrive on the carbon oxide of the air. I see no reason why you should not have flowers and plants in the house if you care to.

Non-Euclidean Geometry.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

In the modern physics and cosmogony of Einstein and De Sitter, the strange geometries unknown to Euclid have at last come into their own. Physicists speak glibly now of non-Euclidean geometry, four dimensions, hyperspace and other spaces. The fictions of nineteenth century mathematicians have become the realities of twentieth century physicists and astrophysicists.

Euclid dealt with certain fundamental assumptions which were labeled axioms. An axiom was a sort of irreducible minimum of truth. It was self-evident—so simple that it could not be made to depend upon a truth still simpler.

Three axioms or propositions stand out as fundamental in the geometry formulated and coordinated by Euclid. First comes the famous "parallel axiom," which asserts that through a given point outside a line one, and only one, parallel to the line can be drawn. This parallel to the line means a line which will not meet the given line, however far produced. A consequence of this is that the sum of the three interior angles of a triangle add up to 180 degrees or two right angles. A second consequence is that, in a right-angled triangle, the square on the hypothenuse is equal to the sum of the squares on the two sides.

This last theorem, known as the Pythagorean theorem, has been called the "pons asinorum" or bridge of asses, for obvious reasons. These three propositions—an axiom and two theorems—are essential features of Euclidean geometry. A straight line in such a geometry is described, somewhat unsatisfactorily, as the shortest distance between two points.

We think of all three of these statements as referring to figures in a plane or flat surface.

We call such a surface a Euclidean plane; and since it has no curvature, we say that its curvature is zero.

The non-Euclidean geometries depart from Euclid's scheme, not by conforming to the parallel axiom. Through a point outside a given "straight line," in some of these non-Euclidean geometries, either no parallel or several parallels may be drawn to a given line.

Analogs to these non-Euclidean geometries are found in certain surfaces which may be drawn in our space, which is, for all practical purposes and for limited regions, Euclidean space of three dimensions.

For instance, consider a sphere or ordinary geographical globe. A "straight" line on a sphere, defined as the shortest distance between two points on the surface of the globe, is the arc of a great circle passing through the two points. Since all great circles on the sphere intersect each other, the geometry on the surface of the sphere is analogous to non-Euclidean, since it does not satisfy the parallel axiom. The sum of the angles of a triangle, formed by "straight" lines, adds up to more than two right angles.

A surface such as the stem of a wine glass is another illustration, by analogy, of a non-Euclidean geometry. Through a point outside of a line, several parallels to the line can be drawn. The sum of the angles of a triangle on this surface add up to less than two right angles.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

Out in Mid-Ocean.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

On the Atlantic, June 25.—Sitting at the captain's table is as much of an ordeal for the average traveler as it doubtless is to the captain himself. Those so honored must be at every meal precisely on time and depart only when the captain has finished and arisen from his chair.

Experienced voyagers decline such invitations even at the risk of a slight. The favored group usually includes an obese and doubtful duchess, a couple of dressmakers from New York and the mayor of Apple Gap, Iowa. People who enjoy the privilege are the sort who demand a box at the New York theater.

This barque has hit upon a novel method of handling the problem. Fifteen different guests are invited to dine nightly with the captain. And—surprise! surprise!—a flash-light photograph is taken of each group by the ship's staff photographer. Great stuff—for the photographer.

The photographer on this liner, incidentally, enjoys a bigger income than the poorly-paid captain. His revenue from photography is considerable, and he is also maestro of the Punch and Judy show, the collection for which at the end of the trip is a sizeable amount.

In addition he operates the moving picture machine in the afternoon and is the electrician at the cabaret performances at night. He is a harried little man—as well he should be—with a set and perpetual smile. And there is Mireille, a manicure girl. I must tell you about her.

She is a brunet with soft laughing eyes from Bologne and is a passionately devoted admirer of Conrad Nagel. When I told her that the hand she was refurbishing had several times clasped the hand of Mr. Nagel she lightly touched it to her lips with an ecstatic gurgle. And I turned red to the ears.

Mireille—the spelling is guess work—haunts Roxy's between voyages in New York to hear the organs and hope for the sight of her dream lover. And so the floating palace plunges on with graceful dips through a slightly rising and falling sea. As I write we are about in the middle of the ocean.

A mere whim that will force the poor engineer to sell his home, take his children out of school, pack his wife with her folks and probably be fired by cable upon reaching Tripoli. We indulged in such wild fantasies that we sought Purser Villar who informed us the gentleman was a bird cage manufacturer in Indianapolis, Indiana. So I left Henry flat to do his own guessing.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Man's greatest handicap is not often what he thinks it is. Taking stock of your own circumstances, you doubtless may point to physical handicaps or certain unfortunate occurrences, and conclude that one thing or another of this sort is your chief handicap. Usually our real handicap is the control which our instincts and emotions have over our lives. Our handicap lies in the failure of the mind—the failure of thinking and judgment to control action. Little by little, as the centuries go on, man brings the mind up to the capacity for control. In that way he eliminates his only real handicap.

University of Chicago professors are interested in a machine invented some time ago, known as the "lie detector." By means of delicate apparatus those changes in breathing, pulse and blood pressure which accompany emotions involving guilt and deception, are recorded. It may or may not work satisfactorily. Liars may beat the machine, but they can not beat themselves. The lie makes its mark on character. We say: "I won't count this time," but every act is recorded in our personality. We can fool others. We even seem to fool ourselves. What he does has its inevitable reaction. It changes him. And a multitude of little changes in direction will some day put the whole man in reverse.

* * *

Somebody has said—it was Sir James M. Barrie—that we ought never to ascribe to others motives meaner than our own. It is easy to condemn another for his act. We say he is doing it for this, that or the other selfish reason. And then, when we do something of a similar nature, it is different. We tell ourselves that we have different—doubtless higher—motives. How do we know what the motives of the other fellow are? Perhaps he is just as high-minded as we are. It just looks different. We are too close to our own behavior to judge it accurately.

* * *

We wonder, seeing all these happy looking young fellows coming out from their high school or college commencements, how many of them realize that at this moment they have a million dollar asset. In fact, it is worth far more. It is immeasurable. That asset is a reputation—a reputation for being honest and honorable in the community in which they live. Many become careless with their reputations, not thinking that they are chipping away at the foundation on which they stand. Ask a banker and he will tell you men borrow money on their reputations in the town as much as on their securities. The boy coming out of school this month has right with him, and within his control, the richest of all securities—a good reputation among the folks that know him.

St. Mary's Church Is Scene of Carter—Bintz Wedding

ONE of the loveliest of the season's weddings was solemnized this morning at 9:30 o'clock at St. Mary's Catholic church when Miss Jessie Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carter of Gallipolis, became the bride of Theodore A. Bintz, of Fremont, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bintz, of 570 East Center street.

Rev. Fr. William J. Spickerman, pastor of St. Mary's church, read the marriage ceremony and was the celebrant at the low nuptial mass. Preceding the ceremony Miss Lucille Conarty played a half-hour program of organ music, and during the mass accompanied John Lacey who sang "Hail Queen of Heaven," "Ave Marie" by Millard and "Hear the Heart of Jesus Pleading." During the service Miss Conarty played "Romance," by Wagner, "Angel's Serenade" by Braga and Wagner's "Last Night." For the processional she played the "Wedding March" from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the bride and party left the church.

Pink roses, delphinium and gypsophelia in gold vases enhanced the beauty of the altar which was banked with palms and greenery and wicker baskets placed on the altar railing at each side of the entrance to the chancel held gladioli in shades of pink, delphinium and gypsophella.

The bride, her maid of honor, Miss Marie Bintz, sister of the bridegroom, and her flower girl, little Miss Barbara Cooperrider, wore gowns fashioned in Colonial style. Miss Carter was lovely in a frock of shell pink silk net embroidered in pastel shades with French blue predominating in the coloring. The model was made with a high waistline, and small puffed sleeves, the skirt touching the floor in the back. Her silk mitts matched the wedding gown in tint and her hat was of buku lined with French blue and trimmed with lace medallions. Moire slippers matched the bridal gown in coloring. She carried a Colonial bouquet of roses, delphinium and gypsophelia held in a shield of lace ribbon from which fell loops of the ribbons.

Miss Bintz wore a piquant gown of soft blue taffeta with trimming of pale pink shading to lipstick red. The costume carried out the Colonial design and was made with a bustle effect. Flowers of pink and lipstick coloring which adorned the skirt in the back formed a striking contrast to the frock with which Miss Bintz wore a hat and pumps in lipstick red shade. Her long gloves were of doeskin, and she carried an arm bouquet of delphinium, daisies and coreopsis tied with loops of red chiffon ribbon. Little Miss Cooperrider's costume was a charming replica of the maid of honor's and she carried a basket holding a French bouquet showered with ribbons in the bridal colors.

Mr. Bintz was attended by his brother A. Lorm Bintz jr., and the ushers were Theodore Nunn of Utica, N. Y. and James Daley of Erie, Pa. The bridegroom, his attendants and the ushers wore gardenias.

Mrs. Carter, mother of the bride, wore a gown of navy blue with accessories in corresponding shades and her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Bintz, mother of the bridegroom wore an ensemble costume of periwinkle chiffon with a hat of pink French felt and eggshell shade of gloves. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of roses and gardenias.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a wrist watch and the bride's gift to her maid of honor was a necklace with a ruby pendant. Her gift to her flower girl was a rope necklace. Mr. Bintz presented his best man a set of full dress shirt studs and cuff links.

A reception and wedding breakfast at the Marion Country club followed the nuptial mass. The table for the breakfast was arranged in U-shape and was centered with Ophelia roses. Maidenhair fern interwoven with sweet peas and delphinium completed the decorative note. A communion breakfast was served for members of the bridal party at Hotel Harding preceding the nuptial mass.

The engagement of Miss Marie Bintz to Dr. Eugene Shanahan of Clyde was announced at the breakfast at the country club by Miss Bintz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bintz. The wedding will be an event of this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bintz left on a motor and boat trip to New York returning home by way of the Canadian route. Mrs. Bintz traveled in a blue ensemble with hat and pumps to match.

The bride is a graduate of Rio Grande college and attended Ohio State university. For the last few years she has been a teacher in the Fremont schools. Mr. Bintz is a graduate of St. Mary's parochial High school and attended Notre Dame. He is manager of the A. L. Bintz store at Fremont where he is affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce and the Lion's club.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. James Carter of Gallipolis, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Carter of London, Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Cooperrider and daughter Barbara of Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bintz, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jarrett and Fred Jarrett of Sharon, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Ted Nunn and Miss Betty Nunn of Utica, N. Y., Miss Mary Alice Whittiker of Glencoe, Ill., John Garrity of Detroit, Mich., Rev. Father Sueckelhoff of Bellevue, Eugene Shanahan of Clyde, Owen Clark of Toledo, Mrs. Laura Reynolds, Mrs. Louise Esch, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bowles of Fremont, Miss Mary Hurley of Fremont, Mrs. William Daley, James Daley, Miss Mildred Whitman and Miss Virginia Daley of Erie, Pa., Rev. and Mrs. Edgar Ewing of Mt. Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelch of Erie, Pa.

TICKET SALE POINTS TO GOOD CROWD FOR SHOVEL BOXING CARD

Odds Still Even on McMurty Stopping Sensational Rise of K O Terry

A brisk advance sale of tickets for the Steam Shovel boxing show tomorrow night in the Shovel gym indicates that a large crowd is going to be present when Jesse McMurty of Cincinnati and K O Terry of Portsmouth start flinging gloves in their 10 round main go to settle Quinton as to whether McMurty can stop the sensational rise of the K O Kid is still rife in local sport circles and the odds are still even on the head liner

Last week McMurty lost the decision to Howard Mitchell for the light weight championship of Greater Cincinnati However Jesse and Mitchell fought all the way and the referees decision came as a distinct shock to the fans If Jesse collected a lot of boos and catcalls from the faithful according to Danny Davis Mr McMurty's manager The Cincinnati man will be trailing a victory over Terry to re-establish the prestige lost when he dropped the 8 rap to Mitchell and a knockout over the undefeated Portsmouth fighter will help plenty here

The semi final bout is shaping up as a rival to the main go In the eight round windup Jimmi Rodgers of Huntington W Va will tackle Buddy Hill of Cincinnati These boys who are featherweights are expected to mix it up to the extent of a K O Hill has become a favorite with Cincy fight fans through his willingness to mix it and at both of the same here Hell in store than Red by Marion fans Nothing goes over in Marion like a free for all The winner of this fight may be given a chance to meet Ray Snyder in the semi final of the next card if he shows enough to warrant the chance

Two clever fighters will present a final round bout in the second semi of the evening Johnny Devlin and Ted Dawson are the principals on this 10 round go

SOLONS DROP TRIBE IN FIVE-INNING GAME BY SCORE OF 7 TO 0

Cubs Creep Closer to Robins by Beating Braves, Berger Ties Hack Wilson.

The Cleveland Indians may or may not finish the pennant race in the money but already they have had the satisfaction of thrilling their home fans with one of the years most exciting exhibitions of the ups and downs of baseball And in doing it they have shown the ability to go up against Jeter

Cleveland off to a bad start put on a great winning streak during its recent home stand against the American league eastern clubs and rose to the top of the standing Then the Indians collided with the New York Yankees Before they left home and continued losing when they opened in the east against the Philadelphia Athletics They dropped seven games before they returned home for a Sunday game and a victory over the As

Since that game they have dropped three more in a row to the Washington Senators and retired to fourth place 1½ games behind the New Yorkers After taking a double header Monday Washington needed only five innings yesterday to pronounce the Indians 7 to 0 Bump Hadley allowed Cleveland only five hits while the Senators collected nine effective blows before rain cut the contest short

No Use Pitching

The futile lack of pitching for the Boston Red Sox received an exhibition in the community American League double header Red Ehmke was barely able to pull out the first game 7 to 5 although he held the Detroit Tigers to five hits a pinch home run by Bill Sweeney finally decided the game The Tigers made but six blows in the second contest but walks and errors gave them enough counters to gain an 8 to 7 decision after ten innings

Wild Bill Hallahan of St Louis lifted his name by allowing the Boston Braves only one walk as the Cardinals pounded out an 11 to 3 triumph He pitched shutout ball after the first inning in which Wally Berger hit his 23rd home run of the year to tie Hack Wilson for the National league lead

Lal Maines performed an even more effective feat as the Chicago Cubs moved to a place only two games behind the 5th Brooklyn Robins with an 8 to 1 victory over Philadelphia Like Hallahan he struck out six but he gave the Phils only eight hits while the St Louisan allowed eleven The Cubs had two big innings of three runs each and half their total was given them by three Phillie errors

Larry Benton also was hit rather freely but he would not give his old mates the New York Giants a free ride to first and the Cincinnati Reds pulled out the game 4 to 1 although outhit 11 to 9

WILLARD REPLACES MANSFIELD SUNDAY

Starr's Drugs of Willard will furnish the opposition for the Marion professional team next Sunday afternoon at Lincoln Park in place of the Mansfield Merchants who were previously scheduled for the north end ball lot This team is the same outfit that sent the strong Marion nine of three years ago into extra innings before succumbing by a one-run margin

This team has been a member of the Northwestern Ohio baseball league for the past three years This league is composed of teams from Sandusky Willard Tiffin Fremont Lorain Port Clinton Upstairs Shelby Clyde and Norwalk The Drugs have won three out of their first four starts this season dropping the opener to the Tiffin Sterretts by a 7 to 2 score Victories have been registered over the Norwalk Pennzoils 9 to 2 and over Clyde by 19 to 8 tally Owens regular Willard hurler was knocked from the box in the eighth inning of the latter game with a four run rally and Schreiber went in and held Clyde hitless for the rest of the game This Schreiber is the same pitcher who hurled the Marion game here

The visitors were always a hard hitting team at least if they can connect like they did in their appearance on the local field Their starting lineup Sunday will be Eblin ob Owens rf H Kuhn p Moore c Hollensmith cf Cornett 1b Shrader lf E Wilkinson 2b Hough ss Ebler Reserves will be taken from Eckler a southpaw hurler J Wilkinson in helder H Kuhn cf and catcher Brown Senior Smith and Shade in helders

The Marion team will probably once more play under the banner of the Marion Merchants as the Steam Shovel Athletic Association has relinquished its right to the team in favor of Jimmy Ruzzo Mr Ruzzo will again take over the management of the team with Francis Bacon still acting as field manager The personnel of the team will not change for the rest of the season and the same nine that opened against Lima will probably start against Willard This will be Mackey c Richardson p Reynolds 1b Bacon 2b Ritzer ss Jones Price lf Rowan cf Apple rf

A definite announcement as to what the Marion team will be known as during the rest of the season will forthcoming in tomorrows paper

Marions wrestling season came to a close at the Steam Shovel gym last night when promoters announced that no more bouts would be staged here until next fall

The tough luck that has followed him through all his matches in the Marion ring was present again last night when Dr Ralph Wilson lost the main go battle to Dude Chick

Fighting an uphill battle Wilson apparently was about to win the match after each man had scored falls when he was accidentally knocked out

Chick won the first in 10 minutes with a swing and slam after the doctor had dished about with his usual recklessness The crab gave Wilson the second fall in the same time

Wilson started the final stanza with a bang He was in to win the

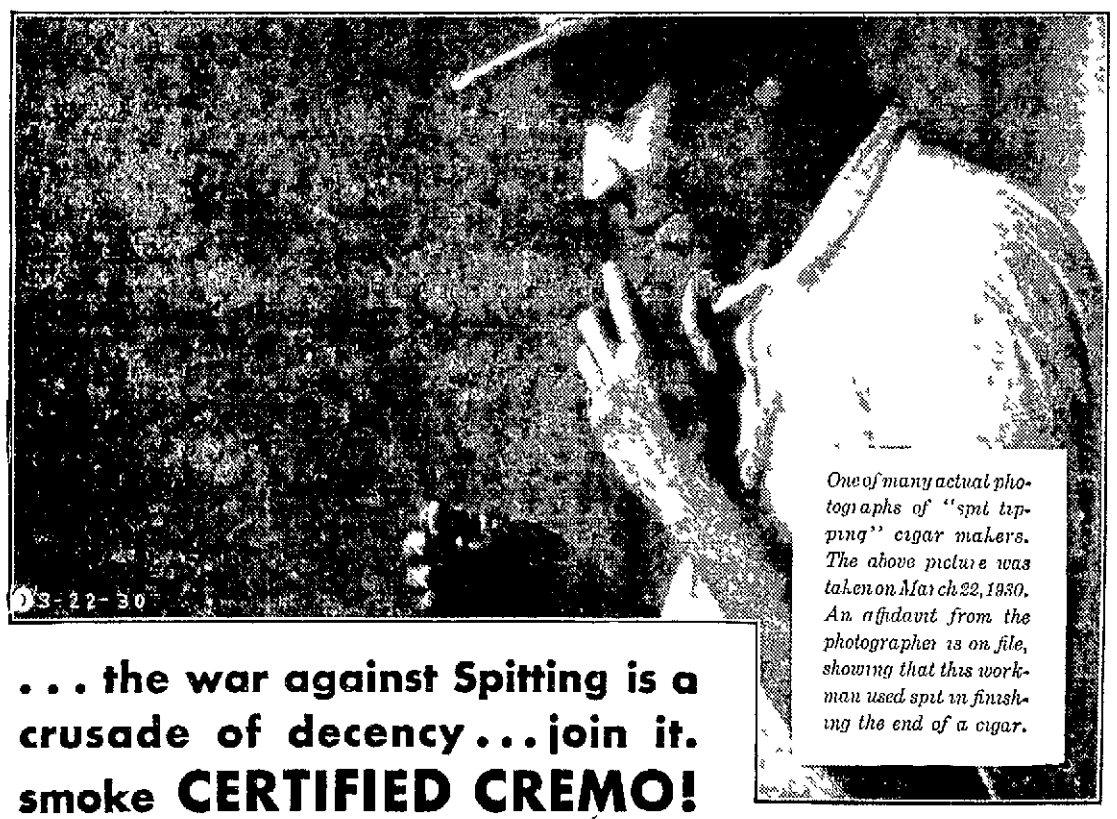
Spit is a horrid word, but it's worse if on the end of your cigar



One of many actual photographs of "spit tipping" cigar makers. The above picture was taken on March 22, 1930. An affidavit from the photographer is on file, showing that this workman used spit in finishing the end of a cigar.

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

Over 7,500 cigar factories are registered by the U. S. Government. Over 7,400 of these hand-roll cigars, producing 50 percent of the output. Every hand-rolled cigar—made by American Cigar Co. or anyone else—is subject to the possible danger of "spit-tipping." Certified Cremo is absolutely free from spit-tipping—No Cremo is made by hand.

The choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords are scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. Certified Cremo's purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that bind, roll, wrap and tip the cigars!

MEMBERS BLAMED FOR LOSS OF POWER

Rev. R. L. Bush Delivers Sermon at Evangelical Church Meeting.

"It is a sad thing that the church seems to have lost its power. If it has lost its power it is because its members have failed in their secret prayer, their public prayer and in reading of God's word. We must get back to the Bible, the source of truth and the foundation of power.

"We have the same gospel as our forefathers had and the same opportunities, but too many of us have lost our enthusiasm. We have great responsibilities and must keep the fire burning in our own soul in order that we may help others." Rev. Raymond L. Bush of Sebring, O., said in his talk before the second session of the Evangelical church in its first annual camp meeting in Garfield park last night.

Rev. Bush spoke on the first 11 verses of the first chapter of Acts, stressing the power of the early church after Pentecost.

Rev. B. A. Snin presided at the meeting and Rev. Hill of Bucyrus opened the service with a prayer. Special music was furnished by a mixed quartet from Oakland church and a ladies quartet from Grace church. Rev. J. E. Campbell, song leader, sang a solo. Nearly 250 persons attended the meeting.

Mrs. Edna Beougher Hughes will deliver the evangelistic sermon in the meeting tonight at 7:30.

ERIE TO USE MOTOR CARS ON LINE HERE

Passenger Trains No. 15 and 16 To Get New Equipment Soon.

Within 15 days Erie trains No. 15 and 16 between Dayton and Youngstown are expected to be motorized according to officials of the Erie here. The new gas-electric propelled cars are of the latest type and have been adopted by some of the leading railways of the country. They made their first appearance in Marion a short time ago when the Pennsylvania installed them on one of its trains between Sandusky and Columbus.

The new cars are longer than those now in use. The front third of the motor car will be used for the engineer as a cab while the other two-thirds will be used as a mail compartment, taking away the necessity of another mail car. A coach and baggage car will complete the train that will run through here. Five of the new motor cars have been purchased by the Erie, some for use on the local division and some further east.

The two trains going through here that will use the motor cars pass through Marion en route to Dayton at 5:25 p. m. and to Youngstown at 11:50 a. m. daily.

New Rules

The Erie railroad is putting new operating rules for its employes into effect July 1. Classes for oral examinations that will be given on that date by officials of the company are being held in the offices of F. T. Carroll, trainmaster here.

The new regulations require that all men employed by the Erie, including telegraph operators, lawermen as well as yardmen be trained thoroughly in engine service. The training classes are being held daily at 9 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Special Trains

On next Sunday morning a special delegation of Blue Lodge Masons of Akron will pass through here enroute to Springfield where they will visit the Masonic home. Another special train was run by the local division of the Erie today from Youngstown, Akron, and Barberton to Newark for the Eagle convention being held there.

Visits Here

Parker B. Snider, official of the C. & O. railway from Columbus, was a visitor in the local offices of the company yesterday.

BUILDERS MEET

U. B. Church Sunday School Class Holds Regular Session.

Fifty-seven members of the Builders Sunday School class of United Brethern church under the leadership of B. K. Hill gathered in the Community House last night for the regular monthly meeting of the class.

The men of the class played horseshoes in the early part of the evening while the ladies prepared a tureen supper.

A business session in charge of Mrs. William Curren, president of the class, followed the supper after which a program was presented. The Carrier family presented a playlet, "Disturbances in the Family." Rev. Carl V. Roop, pastor of the church gave a short talk, "The Aftermath of Pentecost."

During the business session Walter D. Scranton was appointed chairman of the automobile committee for June 29, when the Sunday school and church will make the trip to the U. B. church camp for all day service. Much interest is being manifested in the coming outdoor service and many are expected to attend the meeting.
